UFT SCIENCE COMMITTEE

Friday, December 13, 2019

Jean Delfiner, Chair, JADelfiner@verizon.net
Lew Malchick, Co-Chair, bt_quant@yahoo.com

“What Ten Thinkers Can Teach us about Science and Authority”

Robert P. Crease, Department of Philosophy, Stony Brook University <robert.crease@stonybrook.edu>

Topic: Professor Crease will discuss how Francis Bacon, Galileo Galilei, and others at the beginnings of modern science made a case for its worldly authority, the resistance they encountered, and how they responded. These stories are uncannily relevant to science denial today and how to address it. This should be a very informative and enjoyable evening for us all.

Time: 7:15 PM
